COLONEL O'REAR, SPH

At long last, the Kentuckian who is the spittin' image of a Kentucky Colonel becomes one in reality. On his 92nd birthday at his home near Versailles, Judge Edward C. O'Rear was presented a Colonel's commission. A year or so ago, when State officials were asking artists to submit drawings of their idea of a Kentucky Colonel to be used in State publicity, Courier staff members dilly-dallied the idea of sending Judge O'Rear's picture in, with the notation that artists who could faithfully copy the Judge's likeness, would have their picture of a typical Kentucky Colonel. As it turned out, we paddled around too long, but the end result was exactly as we wished. For when the first publicity was released, bearing the likeness of a Kentucky Colonel, it was—we repeat—the spittin' image of that great Southern gentleman, Judge O'Rear.

ONE SLAIN, ONE WOUNDED NEAR HOME AT GIMLET

SANDY HOOK, Ky., Feb. 2

One man was killed and another wounded at a drinking party in Gimlet near the Elliott-Carter county line Saturday night.

Elliott County Sheriff D. A. Lewis said Ward Walker, Sinking Creek, Carter county, admitted killing Charles Johnson, 42, of Gimlet and wounding Arlie Sparks, also of Gimlet, in the arm near Sparks' home. Walker gave himself up Sunday morning.

The sheriff quoted Walker as saying he argued with Sparks and meant to kill him, not Johnson. Walker told the sheriff Sparks was armed and that he shot him in self-defense. Sheriff Lewis quoted Sparks as saying that had been an argument.

Walker will be held in Carter county jail in Grayson until his examining trial Wednesday before Elliott County Judge David L. Davis in Sandy Hook.

BURLEY PROBLEM IS BEING STUDIED BY COMMITTEES

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 2—Two new studies are planned in the search for solutions to burley industry problems, primarily overproduction.

John M. Berry, New Castle, is chairman of an eight-state committee named to suggest remedial action yesterday and has appointed a legal committee to see what measures could be applied to the 1955 crop under the present law.

The committeemen are William C. Clay, Jr., counsel for the Burley Auction Warehouse Assn.; Judge Lorenzo K. Wood, counsel for the Burley Leaf Dealers Assn.; Tom Pepper, counsel for the Tennessee Burley Stabilization Corp.; Tom Hurlert, Washington attorney representing the Tennessee Burley Tobacco Growers Assn.; and Con Lanier, counsel for the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Assn.

The group named Berry ex-officio chairman.

Also appointed was an executive committee consisting of Berry, John H. Grierson, Ohio, and Turner Gilmer, Jr., of Virginia.

Meantime, the University of Kentucky and the University of Tennessee, announced plans to study overall problems of the burley industry in a joint project.

The eight-state group's first meeting yesterday heard recommendations that production quotas be put on the 1956 crop in addition to acreage controls, that penalties be increased and the enforcement of existing laws with growers exceeding quotas; and that allotments be handled in ways tending to cut production.

Randolph S. Taylor, executive secretary of the Burley and Dark Leaf Tobacco Export Assn., said figures based on the current formula for computing quotas show a 600 million pound crop in 1955 could mean a 75 percent slash in quotas for 1956.

Judge O'Rear Is Made Kentucky Colonel On His 92nd Birthday

VERSAILLES, Ky., Feb. 2—Former Court of Appeals Judge Edward C. O'Rear was presented a Kentucky Colonel's commission on his 92nd birthday today.

The commission, awarded by acting Gov. Emerson (Doc) Beauchamp, was presented by Atty. Leslie Morris, a longtime friend, at the Judge's country home, Ashley House Farm near here, in an informal birthday ceremony.

Another close personal friend of Judge O'Rear attended the brief ceremony. He is Sherman Goodpastor, Frankfort banker and former State official.

Tonight members of the judge's immediate family were guests for dinner at his estate. Included were his three sons, Prentice O'Rear, Frankfort businessman; James B. O'Rear, Woodford county distillery executive, and Col. John T. O'Rear, San Francisco, a retired Army officer, and two daughters, Mrs. William E. Bradley, Woodford county, and Mrs. Helen O. Scruggs, Frankfort. The jurist has seven grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

At the insistence of his friends, Judge O'Rear today told of numerous instances when he was referred to as a typical Kentucky colonel.

The most engaging, he said, came when a comely lady approached him in the lobby of a Lexington hotel nine years ago. The Kentucky Derby was to be run that afternoon at Churchill Downs in Louisville, the judge recalled.

"Pardon me, sir, but you look so much like a Kentucky Colonel

"I just had to shake your hand for luck before I go to the Derby," the lady told O'Rear.

"And now," she said, "You must tell me which horse to bet on. I just know you know all about them."

O'Rear recalled today that the remark "set me back a great deal. I didn't know who was going to win the Derby anymore than the man in the moon."

But I told the lady: "Madam, you say you're from Texas? Well, your Mr. Kleberg (Robert J. Kleberg, master of famed King Ranch at Kingsville, Tex., and owner of a Thoroughbred) was a Kentucky Colonel."

Crockett School Plans Beautification Project In Very Near Future

The Crockett school is planning an intensive program of beautification of their school grounds for the very near future under direction of Berlyn Brown and Bradley Thomas, Soil Conservationists of Morgan county.

The two men have visited the school and drawn up a chart suggestive of trees to be planted and grass to be grown as well as the changes in the driveway and walkway of the school grounds.

Native trees will be planted in addition to trees bought from the State Forestry Service. Types and kinds of trees were suggested by the conservationists after a careful study of the soil and location of the building in relation to the amount of sunlight received each day.

Mr. Brown in a detailed discussion told many interesting facts to the students in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades concerning planting procedures and precautions.

The project is to be done by the students in relation to Science classes but will be supervised by the Conservation Department and the teachers of the Crockett school. Claude Rowland, Ford Foundation Fellow, will direct the project with the children taking the lead in securing native trees for planting.

Some Pointers On Getting the Most Out Of Phones

Woodrow W. Barber, manager of the Mountain Rural Telephone cooperative, emphasizes the need for proper use of phones in order that patrons may obtain maximum service.

In some instances, Barber said, a phone has not been replaced in the cradle and thus kept all members on that line from using their phones.

Barber emphasized the importance of seeing that the phone is in the cradle when not in use. It was pointed out that children sometimes remove the phone from the cradle. When this happens, any patron on that line will get a busy signal if he tries to use his phone.

The attention of all telephone patrons was called to the paragraph on page 3, "Gimme the Most Out of Our Party Line."

A thorough reading of the instructions in the front of the temporary directory was urged.

The proper way to dial is explained fully in the last paragraph on page 2.

Another point brought out was that many people are still dialing "he letter 'O'" when they mean to dial zero.

The purpose of the REA telephone act, said Barber, is to give service in rural areas, and it was thought by experienced authorities that an eight-party line if handled properly would give adequate service. It was not anticipated that graded service in rural areas would be necessary, he said.

According to Manager Barber, a new directory will be mailed all phone patrons within the next few days.

With the exception of lining up free service carrier trunks between some exchanges, most of the problems relative to completing the lines have been worked out and service will be completely adequate shortly.

A cut-over celebration to observe completion of the line will take place February 23. A program with visiting dignitaries is being planned and will be announced next week.

Mr. Barber emphasized that patrons should use their phones as often as desired, with this reservation, replace the phone in the cradle when through talking.

EAST KENTUCKIAN IS 'MAN OF YEAR'

Paul Garrett Blazer, Ashland industrialist and civic leader, was named Kentuckian of the Year for 1954 by the Kentucky Press Association at the 86th annual mid-winter convention at Brown Hotel, Louisville. He was selected by vote of the membership from a list of twenty well known Kentuckians who had been nominated for the services to their community and state.

He follows a distinguished list of Kentuckians who received the award in previous years, Henry Ward, Mrs. Mary Breckenridge, Dean Thomas Poe Cooper, Paul Bryant, Senator John Sherman Cooper, and Senator Alben W. Barkley.

He was presented the award and certificate by Vice President William C. Caswood following his introduction by James T. Norris, fellow citizen of Mr. Blazer, and executive editor of the Ashland Independent. In his laudatory remarks Mr. Norris stressed the contribution that Mr. Blazer has made for many years to his community, to the state, and to education, as well as his leadership in the industrial realm. In listing his accomplishments, the speaker paid tribute to the awarder for his unstinted devotion, time and means to the field of education.

Mr. Blazer was born in New Boston, Ill., in 1890, the son of a weekly newspaper publisher. He attended William and Washt College and the University of Chicago. After serving as advertising manager of the Great Northern Refining Company in Chicago he came to Kentucky in 1919 following service in World War I. He assisted in organizing the Great Southern Refining Company in Lexington, and moved to Ashland in 1924 to organize the Ashland Refining Company which was later merged with the Swiss Oil Company in 1936 as the present Ashland Oil and Refining Company with Mr. Blazer as president.

He became chairman of the board in 1944. The Ashland Company is now one of the leading industries in the state; with its subsidiaries, it employs over 4,000 people. He had led in the realization and use of the tremendous possibilities of the Ohio River as a vital artery for Kentucky commerce. His company now operates seven large diesel towboats on the river.

He is a director on several large corporations and served as chairman of the board of the Cincinnati branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland in 1949-50. He was member of the Petroleum Industry War Council during World War II and is a present member of the National Petroleum Council.

He is a member of the Board of Trustees of Centre College, Danville; Alpha Tau Alpha; and he received the Sullivan Medal Award from the University of Kentucky in 1948.

He was married to Miss Georgia Stuart Monroe in 1917. Two children, Paul Garrett, Jr., and Doris Virginia, live at home. A second son, Stuart Monroe, was killed in action in Korea. Mrs. Blazer is a member of the Board of Trustees of the University of Kentucky.

In honoring Mr. Blazer, the Association is itself honored for the accomplishment of one of Kentucky's outstanding citizens.

Missionary Society of Grassy Lick Met 27th

The Missionary Society of the Grassy Lick Baptist church met Jan. 27 at the church. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. H. L. Gevedon, who also read the Scripture lesson. After a song, prayer was offered by Mrs. Joe Blevins.

The business session included the election of officers for the ensuing year: Mrs. H. L. Gevedon was re-elected president, Mrs. G. Gevedon treasurer and Mrs. Ova Amyx, secretary. It was voted that members become honorary as they attain the age of seventy. Those enrolled at present are Mesdames Lula Gevedon, Sallie Peyton and Maggie McClure.

Mrs. J. F. Ferguson delighted the group by offering as a permanent meeting place their vacant storehouse.

Two pairs of pillow cases, two aprons, one aluminum tray and one pen (gifts from members) were priced by the group and sold. Several boxes of all-occasion cards were sold and dues were collected. It was also decided that the Christmas party be reported. Work was done on piecing square for a quilt.

Feb. 2 was set for an all-day session of quilting and the setting up of a wedding ring quilt top, donated by Mrs. Bert Gevedon.

Those present were Mesdames H. L. Gevedon, J. F. Ferguson, Archie Smallwood, Marian Russell, Mort Peyton, Gerald Gevedon, Edward Adams, Bert Gevedon, Carmi Chaney, Joe Blevins, Arthur Ross, Ova Amyx, Joseph Gevedon, Paul Gevedon, J. L. Gevedon and Miss Opal Peyton.

Christmas Party

December 16 marked the date of the Christmas party at the church. A tree was beautifully ornamented and lighted.

Community prayer meeting preceded the party, then under the direction of Mrs. H. L. Gevedon, president, Secret Pals were made known and new ones drawn for 1955.

Patches of sorghum and Korean lespedeza are very attractive to quail. They are easily established, but are short-lived. They are not practical where there is no cover, says the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

"I was afraid to look for that

"After Assault won, I believe she would have embarrassed me by running up and kissing me."

In presenting the commission,
Morris told Judge O'Rear:

"I was asked by Governor Beauchamp to tell you he believed you looked and acted like a Kentucky Colonel and thereby deserved the commission. All of us agree that you deserve it."

Judge O'Rear was the 14th child

Camargo, Montgomery county, in 1863. His father, Daniel O'Rear, while George Washington was still serving as President.

Thus, the elder O'Rear's lifetime and that of his son have spanned the terms of every President of the United States.

The jurist, who describes himself as "self-educated to a great degree," studied and practiced law at West Liberty in the 1880's and served two years as a judge of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, from 1908 through 1911.

His first wife, Mrs. Virginia Hazelrigg O'Rear, died about twenty years ago. In 1933, he married Miss Mabel Taylor, Frankfort.

A distinguished member of a Vandyke board have for years identified Judge O'Rear to homefolks and visitors as "Mr. Kentucky Colonel." The commission he received today gives him that title.

Judge O'Rear at 92 is hale and hearty and keeps busy every day of his life.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

BALANCING THE BUDGET OF OUR GOOD, BAD DEEDS

The Courier—

I presume that most people, like myself, enjoy reminiscing the past, which is more or less like counting your blessings, or to use a better term, "living in the past," be what it may. It is sometimes something to enumerate the good deeds of the past with the bad ones that can be attributed to one's own experiences. It would be commendable if every one would take an inventory of themselves each year and enumerate the good deeds that can be attributed to their own individual operation through the year, as compared to the mistakes.

By so doing this should enable you to make an improvement in your own operation in the art of launching a useful life. It would more clearly reveal the funda-mentals that go to make up a life worth living. It would also be of help to you in remembering the good deeds you have extended to others, or to those who have according to you by your friends.
This could be termed as "Balancing the budget" or evaluating the good deeds over the bad. The help and assistance you receive from others is largely responsible for the success of most every one who succeeds in life. No one can make a success on their volition.

Without the help, cooperation, collaboration and assistance of other people, you would be doomed
and thereby sink into oblivion and failure in your quest for fame and fortune. There are too many people who fail to give credit where credit is due to those who have lent a helping hand that aided to a rise in life that motivated success. There are also too many people who have attained distinction in the business world and have acquired a high standard of living and perhaps believed after they have accumulated
that they have pulled themselves
up by their own bootstraps and
that no one else except themselves is responsible for their rise in life. This, we know, is impossible but it is very easy for them to forget the help they got from others after they have accumulated a wealth of worldly goods and are now living a comfortable and happy life.

It is an easy matter to view one's past and evaluate the good things and to count the mistakes after the fact, but to want to feel
that they have pulled themselves
up by their own bootstraps and
that no one else except themselves

5 PRESENTED KIWANIS PINS

The West Liberty Kiwanis Club awarded Kiwanis pins to five new members and perfect attendance tabs to four old members at its dinner meeting Wednesday evening.

J. Blaine Nickell and Woodrow W. Barber had charge of the program. Mr. Nickell, a charter member of the club, described the beginning of Kiwanis and told the objects of the organization. The Kiwanis motto is "We Build."

Mr. Barber, after a brief talk, presented Kiwanis pins to these new members: Rev. J. Ryan Nevius, Wilmer Cecil, Fred Rose, Jasper Dennis and Paul Shipley.

Barber then presented perfect attendance tabs as follows—to J. Blaine Nickell, an eleven-year perfect attendance tab; to W. M. Gardner, a five-year perfect attendance tab; to Woodrow L. Stamper, a two-year perfect attendance tab, and to Harold Barber, a one-year perfect attendance tab.

Mr. Barber also presented a past-president's pin to Wendell Nickell, the retiring president, and commended him for the achievements of the club during his administration.

The five new members were assigned to various committees, being noted that the local club has as its motto this year, "Use 'em, or lose 'em."

Guests were Bronston Steeles of Ashland, Rev. Charles Hobbs of West Liberty, and L. A. House of Washington, Tenn.

Mr. Barber in his address to new members told them "some things that Kiwanis is not."

Kiwanis, he said, is not a chamber of commerce, though it is ever alert to opportunities for community service. It is not a church, though it has adopted the Golden Rule as a guide for right living and supports the objectives of religious institutions. Neither is it a political organization, though it believes every member should be an informed citizen who carries out the responsibilities of citizenship while enjoying its privileges.

He urged 100 percent attendance of members and that they join in the activities of the club.

House Plan No. 3

TWO STORIES, TWO BATHS, PORCHES

This FARM AND RANCH house No. 3 gives the large family as much living space as possible for the last cost.

It is designed so that you can include a basement in the plans, thus providing not only more space for storage and a wash room but an ample site also for a central heating system. The system can be installed along the inside wall of the basement, requiring very little duct work.

Every room can be heated from the central wall, with the exception of the bedroom and bath on the first floor—and even then the leaders wouldn't have to be very long.

The rooms in this house are not spacious, but are large enough to be comfortable. The doors and windows are placed to give you as much usable wall space as possible.

There are two porches, one in front and one in back. The back porch can be closed in as a good location for a home freezer or for a wash room—in case you decide not to build a basement right now.

Closets are distributed throughout the house. And there is a pantry and a closet in the kitchen—one place in the house where you never seem to have enough.

SOME THINGS I REMEMBER

By MRS. W. H. WELLS

A birthday card that I received years ago that had this short verse on it: "May the years that come and go be as golden hours in a perfect day. Through the morning, noon and sunset, too, may the joy of living be real to you." All through the passing years there has been the joy of living. There have been heartaches but through it all there is peace as the years go by that passes all understanding.

When the gold in our hair has turned to silver and we begin to think of yesterdays, some folks say, "Don't do that. People will think you are getting old." William Lyon Phelps has written this pleasantly on "Growing Old":

It is sad to see so many men and women afraid of growing old. They are in bondage to fear. Many of them when they see the first gray hair are alarmed. Now one ought not to be alarmed when one's hair turns gray. If it turned green or blue one should see a doctor. But when it turns gray that simply means there is so much gray matter in the skull there is no longer room for it, so it comes out and discolors the hair. We should never be ashamed of our gray hair but wear it proudly as we would carry a flag and think how fortunate we are to have lived long enough to earn it. Each school day morning as I raise the shades to the windows in our small home, I see a group of little folks waiting for the school bus to take them carefully to school. It is their first year and it does one good to see how happy they are. Then I remember hearing my Mother say of me to her friends one day: "Well, it won't be long until our little girl will be starting in to school." I was so thrilled I could hardly wait until September came. There was what was called the public school for those children that lived within the town, but those outside the town limits had to pay for the privilege of attending. I never heard much about what you call the rural schools at that time, but most families that could possibly do so sent their children to private schools. Along in late summer I knew the time was getting near when my Mother and I would start the sewing and knitting. Never will I forget those scratchy red, white and pink woolen stockings and mittens, red and white flannel petticoats, long underwear, high button shoes, heavy coats and fascinators. When winter came I was so bundled up I looked like a mole.

Then for summer there were calico dresses of red, blue and white, best grade 5 cents a yard. Then there were the Sunday dresses, worn only on Sunday or some special occasion, woolen dresses with intricate patterns for winter and pretty white dresses with wide ribbon sashes for summer. The sashes were my favorites. One I remember was of wide watered silk that made a bow almost as large as I was. As soon as I was where my Mother could not see me, I brought that big bow around in front so I could see it. But I was pretty sure to put it back before I was near home.

And hats! how I hated them. Every hat had a rubber band that went under your chin to hold it on. I usually carried mine in my hand like a handbag.

Some of my happiest years were spent at Rose Hill Seminary, a school for girls conducted by the Rev. William Crenshaw and his wife, Rev. Crenshaw was a minister of the Christian church during his lifetime. We were never allowed to chew gum or bite our fingernails. If we did we were sent to the Crenshaw children's black mammy to be fed—which was a bad thing to happen. Day pupils had to take their lunch. No lovely school cafeteria or sweet shop to buy your lunch, no wax paper or foil to wrap your jam biscuit in, just a napkin and a paper bag or box.

Very few children had lunch boxes. And bread for sandwiches was never heard of. Bakers bread was something that you only bought in an emergency. I remember one time my Mother sent me for two loaves. They were five cents a loaf and baked two loaves together with crusts all over. Somehow I happened to get to the middle of the two loaves before I reached home and when my Mother opened the package, one loaf was empty. I had eaten the whole inside. What happened then I have forgotten, but I have a vivid imagination!

Young folks of today wonder what in the world we did to have fun—no movies, no cars, no swimming pools, and for clothes, no blue jeans or saddle oxfords, no shorts or sweaters or Bobbie Sox and no nylons. But we didn't miss any of them. We didn't know anything about such things because they were never heard of. There were many happy days that would be great to live over again, but as we cannot go back in reality we have wonderful memories that really are almost as good. And may the joy of living be real to all of us as we go toward the Sunset of this life.

HISTORY OF DINGUS AND ADDINGTON FAMILIES

By Astor Barker, Caney, Ky.

When one begins tracing their ancestry, he often finds that he has distant relatives he never knew existed. It is also possible to know, or know of these people and not know of the family relation.

I knew very little of my mother's paternal ancestors until I read a history of some of the families. My mother, Mrs. Cora Barker, was the daughter of Charles B. Dingus for whom the Dingus, Ky. post office in Morgan county was named. He died when Mother was three years old. He has two other living children—J. L. Dingus of Licking River and Mrs. Frank Barker of Darfork.

Charles B. Dingus had thirteen brothers and sisters, who were all born in Virginia. Charles B. and his brother William M. Dingus migrated to Kentucky. Charles B. married Sarah Hamilton in 1884 and William B. married Martha Smith in 1878.

William Dingus' children who are now living are Frank Dingus, Dora Dingus and Hattie Oney of Bethanna and John Dingus and Fannie Oney of Harper.

The parents of William and Charles Dingus were George and Margaret Addington Dingus. Margaret Addington Dingus was born June 2, 1814 in Virginia, daughter of Charles Cromwell Addington and Anna Dots Addington. Charles Cromwell Addington was born in Culpepper county, Virginia Oct. 10, 1777 and was the father of sixteen children. He lived to be 104 years, 3 months and 8 days.

The father of Charles C. Addington was born in London, England about 1750 and came to America a wealthy young man and settled in Culpepper county, Virginia. He married Margaret Cromwell about 1774. He volunteered and fought under General Washington in the war between Great Britain and the Colonies and was present at the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown in 1781.

There are many descendants of the Addington family in Kentucky, Virginia, Tennessee and in many states throughout the USA.

The Kilgore of Morgan county are of that family. Paschal Kilgore who at one time lived at Caney is mentioned in the history of the family.

Julia Addington married William Lawson in 1845 and lived in Wolfe county near Maytown, Ky. They had four daughters and two sons. One of the daughters, Kate, married John Centers. They were the parents of Dr. Taylor Centers of Wolfe county. Josephine married first Newt Ingram, then second, John Bowman. They lived near Maytown and were survived by seven children. Many of the descendants live in Wise and Scott county, Virginia. A history was written of the family from the time they came to the U. S. until the year 1931.

There are many names in the history that are familiar in this section, some of which are Lawson, Fugate, Gibson, Fletcher, Lowers, Davis, Culbertson, Elam, Wells, Jenkins, Price, Porter, Meade, Dikes, Osborne, Lane, Nickels, Carter, Moore, Hill, Craft, Easterling, Blankenship and Hammond.
